1. Overview of the British Council

1.1 The British Council is the UK's international organisation for cultural relations and educational opportunities. We create friendly knowledge and understanding between the people of the UK and other countries. We do this by making a positive contribution to the UK and the countries we work with – changing lives by creating opportunities, building connections and engendering trust.

1.2 We work with over 100 countries across the world in the fields of arts and culture, English language, education and civil society. Each year we reach over 20 million people face-to-face and more than 500 million people online, via broadcasts and publications. Founded in 1934, we are a UK charity governed by Royal Charter and a UK public body

1.3 The British Council employs over 10,500 staff worldwide. It has its headquarters in the UK, with offices in London, Manchester, Belfast, Cardiff and Edinburgh. Further information can be viewed at www.britishcouncil.org.

2 Introduction and Background to the Project / Programme

2.1 In 2015, the United Nations published the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) outlining a vision for 2030 that would end poverty, protect the planet and ensure that all people enjoy peace and prosperity. Within this, a clear commitment was made to ensure that every country in the world developed a high-quality, inclusive and equitable education system that supported young people to live and work in a globalised economy, and to use their knowledge, skills and values to contribute responsibly both locally and globally<sup>1</sup>.

It is clear that in order to achieve this, education systems will need not only to provide the essential knowledge and mastery that young people require in reading, writing and mathematics, but also to deliver this in a manner that develops key transferable skills (such as critical thinking, entrepreneurial and communication skills, and language skills, where applicable) and attitudes (such as resilience, mutual respect and tolerance). Development education and global learning (DEGL)<sup>2</sup> plays a vital role in creating such a system, and has been part of the UK's education landscape for over 30 years<sup>3</sup>.

The British Council and Department for International Development (DFID) will co-fund the Connecting Classrooms through Global Learning (CCGL) programme (the "Programme") from 2018 to 2021 to provide opportunities for pupils in the UK and in the developing world to learn about and take action on global issues, as well as to develop their key Core and Transferable Skills through six main elements:

- Grants to support DEGL networks of schools and partnership projects between schools in the UK and schools in developing countries;
- Professional development training for teachers and school leaders in the UK and developing countries;
- Online partnerships plus access to teaching and learning resources;
- School and teacher level accreditation and awards;
- Advocacy and awareness raising at policy level; and
- Monitoring and evaluation of the above elements

The Department for International Development (DFID) is the UK government department responsible for international development and the reduction of poverty overseas.

DFID believes that every child growing up in the UK should have the opportunity to learn about the world around them, about the essential facts of poverty and underdevelopment which face children their own age in other countries, and to develop the knowledge and skills to make judgements about global poverty, its causes, and what can be done to reduce it.

3. Scope of Work

The British Council seeks to appoint an expert supplier or suppliers to deliver high quality face-to-face training interventions for teachers and/or school leaders on the British Council Core and Transferable Skills training packages in Jordan from September 2018 to June 2019 (with the option to extend for 12-24 months – MENA/Jordan).

Each appointed supplier will deliver training interventions as part of an agreed programme of delivery agreed with the British Council. The programme of delivery will align with curricular priorities and opportunities for schools in the relevant country – including primary, secondary and special schools.

<sup>2</sup> Development education and global learning can be defined in a number of ways, and also referred to as global citizenship, education for sustainable development etc. DFID defines it as education that aims to inform learners about global issues, such as poverty, climate change, and the rationale for UK aid, and to equip them with the knowledge, skills, and attitudes they need to live and work in a globalised economy and take action on sustainable development.

<sup>3</sup> Bourn. D. (2014). "The Theory and Practice of Global Learning". DERC Research Paper No. 11, London: IOE/DERC.

Suppliers will be mobile and be able to reach teachers and school leaders from all/specific geographical areas in Jordan.

Each appointed supplier will:

1. Plan and agree with British Council an annual Core Skills training programme of delivery at the beginning of each year of their contract, with reviews at regular intervals.
2. In consultation with British Council (and with local stakeholders as directed), shape the content, structure and length of courses to suit the specific needs of participants - using the British Council's suite of Core Skills training packages and recommendations for delivery, as well as their own knowledge of appropriate training styles and methodologies in each national context.
3. Ensure that all workshops for teachers are led by validated trainers (see below) and that high-quality inputs are provided.
4. Manage all aspects of the organisation of the programme of delivery, including (but not limited to): pre-workshop information for participants, managing enquiries, managing issues relating to cancellations/non-attendance, provision of workshop materials, ensuring specific participant needs are considered and met (eg. access for disabled participants) and other logistics as relevant to ensure a high quality service.
5. In consultation with British Council and local stakeholders, promote the offer and recruit participants for workshops. The British Council will also work with each provider to promote the course via channels such as the Schools Online website and e-newsletter, exhibitions/events and our network of ambassadors to ensure specific target audiences are prioritised as necessary.
6. Provide support and mentoring to other trainers with development needs in your country. This might include telephone and email support or co-delivering training to help model best practice and share knowledge and experience.
7. Support the British Council's monitoring and evaluation systems by implementing the learning outcomes evaluation strategy and gathering participant feedback on the content, structure and delivery of the courses, and making recommendations for continuous improvement. The British Council will record and analyse feedback received to help inform future developments in our schools offer. For quality-assurance and monitoring purposes, British Council members of staff will attend a small selection of courses delivered by each provider.
8. If required, be willing to deliver training in other countries (subject to agreement in advance) to help support the global rollout and success of the Core Skills training programme.
9. Actively participate in a global network of Core Skills trainers from countries around the world where the training packages are being delivered. Appointed suppliers are expected to engage with this network via online forums and networking spaces on a regular basis.
10. As required by the British Council, take part in additional face-to-face quality assurance and professional development workshops for Core Skills trainers. The dates and venues of these follow-up workshops will be determined in consultation with suppliers.

Training and Validation of Trainers

Each shortlisted supplier will go through a process of validation. For organisations proposing individual trainers, up to 2 trainers will be put forward per organisation. The validation process consists of two phases. The first phase involves the completion of a pre-validation questionnaire for each proposed trainer. The proposed trainers that can provide the evidence requested in the questionnaire will then be invited to attend a local face-to-face training, assessment and validation event. The shortlisted provider will only be awarded a contract for those named trainers who meet the validation criteria.

Training, assessment and validation events will be led by a regional Master Trainer in partnership with the British Council. Proposed trainers, if successful, will be validated to lead and deliver Core Skills training interventions in their country.

Successful trainers will be experts in delivering and facilitating participatory professional development training workshops and will have relevant knowledge and experience relating to Core and Transferable Skills.

All the trainers will be assessed using the three competency grouping:
